COCO showcases unique desserts for health-conscious clientele

11 November 2011, Hong Kong: Until 20 November, the stylish café-pâtisserie COCO at The Mira Hong Kong features desserts for health-conscious guests with sweets cravings. Stunning artisan cakes and desserts can be enjoyed without - or at least less - guilt in the designer interiors of stylish café located in the sleek hotel lobby.

Creatively designed by the Executive Pastry Chef, Jean-Marc Gaucher, delicious vegetarian treats include the velvety Strawberry Cheesecake and Mango-coconut Panacotta, a crispy crumble with fresh mango and layers of coconut panacotta and mango pudding. “For health-conscious cake-lovers I suggest trying our less calorific selections that are eggless and made with less sugar so the intake of cholesterol and calories is reduced,” recommends Chef Jean-Marc.

“It is always a challenge to come up with a good recipe and make up for the lack of eggs so that desserts have nice and creamy yet texture, keep firm shape and are COCO-licious,” explains the mastermind who stands behind the couture-like creations, defying the misconception of compromise often associated with “healthy” desserts.

An elegant concept of irresistible luxury and delicious indulge is no longer restricted to those having no dietary constrains.
